A Gain on Arthritis

For many years doctors and scientists have been speculating about the cause of rheumatoid arthritis and related diseases. Quite recently such speculation practically ceased because scientists now believe they have developed a sound knowledge which enables them to connect arthritic afflictions and several other disorders together as to cause.

The National Foundation and the Johns Hopkins Medical Institution in Baltimore presented their theory to scientific writers at a special seminar. They believe that the symptoms of these diseases result from alterations in the body's immune mechanism which permits some agents, possibly viruses, to act in the friendly environment of an inherited pre-disposition to such ailments. The doctors agree that their evidence was not conclusive but that it was "powerfully suggestive." There is, they said, evidence that arthritis and rheumatism as well as several other immunological disorders have an incidence much higher in some families than in the general population. Further, they noted, that persons in such families who do not have overt symptoms of the disease frequently carry a sign of it in their blood. The sign is known as the rheumatoid factor.

The fact that many persons carrying this rheumatoid factor do not develop the disease has led to the opinion that some sort of a trigger was necessary to touch off the trouble. It was agreed there have been many cases providing evidence that an infectious agent was needed to cause the disease among those who carried the inheritance sign in their blood. It also was reported that certain forms of infectious arthritis are known to be caused by bacteria and viruses because the germs can be recovered from the swollen joints.

Furthermore, cases have been noted where rheumatoid arthritis develops early in life before the child's immune mechanisms are fully developed. Incidents of such affliction have been shown to be much higher in persons suffering from a condition known as agammaglobulinemia. In this condition a major part of the person's defenses is absent which leaves a way open for any infection and probably also to the sort that might produce rheumatoid arth-

On the basis of what is known, scientists believe they are now on the brink of a really important discovery in this field. Such a discovery will certainly be welcome for arthritis is a painful disease, often very discouraging because little hope is offered by doctors. As a result, many of the sufferers from arthritis are easy prey for quacks who hold out strong hope of a cure but who are unable to do anything and certainly much less able than the practicing physicians who in all honesty must decline to predict a cure.

The Chicago Daily Tribune, in a series of articles exposing the efforts of quacks in Chicago, found that arthritic persons are the best customers of quacks. One reason is the terrific pain that may result from arthritis but they've become chronic and constant patrons of the quacks because of the fluctuating attacks of this disease. Very often when a person has suffered severely for a long time and finally turns to a quack doctor for relief it just so happens that the disease is about to subside and the patient then is led to believe that he has received some real help.

That idea is sufficient to keep him as a regular customer until a new onset of the disease develops. Then, if he loses confidence in one quack, he may only turn to another who is just around the corner with more promises. After trying out a series of these offers he again may be in the process of accepting treatment from a new quack when the disease subsides again.

Both from the point of view of the great suffering this disease causes, and the fact that it makes the sufferers the easy prey of quacks, there are real reasons to hope that the so-called breakthrough of the scientists in this field may be near at hand.

Bingo in New York

The problem of gambling, legalized and supposedly under state and local controls, may be even bigger than complete prohibition such as we have in Wisconsin. New York state is having difficulties.

Some years ago the New York Legislature passed a series of laws aimed at the control of bingo games which are legal under specified conditions. There were flagrant violations, so many that Gov. Nelson Rockefeller requested an investigation and appointed Thomas Gilchrist, Jr., to

In his report, Mr. Gilchrist has no startling findings. He merely states that "evils have permeated all phases of control and conduct of bingo at all levels. The evidence given in testimony "demonstrated that the regulation of bingo at both the state and local level has been inadequate and ineffective." Part of the trouble was the supervision by the Lottery Control Commission which, Gilchrist said, "has been somewhat less than rigid". He charged that some members of the commission have become "affected with varying degrees of conflict of interest."

The problem also is one for local officials. They often don't enforce the statutes because they regard the violations as unimportant and hesitate to offend authorities in local sponsoring organizations. Gilchrist's report says that in some communities "the professional promoters who operated before the laws were passed, and who were all known to law enforcement officials, continued their operations after legislation. . . The result has been that undesirable elements have been only mildly deterred in their activities in various fields associated with bingo." These include operators of the game, suppliers of equipment and owners or operators of halls used for bingo.

It often has seemed ridiculous in Wisconsin that religious or charitable organizations cannot operate bingo games purely for the profit of the group. If people would rather pay for altar cloths or food for the poor through the proceeds of a game, the moral problem involved is an individual one. But it has been demonstrated over and over again that the supervision of gambling in which a lot of money can be made by unethical methods or outright dishonesty is a tremendous problem. New York State is finding it out.

Battle of Terms "Negotiation" is an interesting word in the disputed territory. But Indonesia still this decade, particularly in its connotation says that it will negotiate with the Netherrelating to the various conflicts and dis-

Webster also has a definition for a colloquial understanding of negotiate. It is "to deal with as desired." Before long all nations will have to have negotiating meetings to negotiate that which is negotiable. In fact, maybe we have it already. Said U. S. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson in discussing his talks with Andrie Gromyko:

"It was agreed that the discussions will be continued at a time to be agreed upon." And of course there must be a meeting. time and place to be agreed upon, in which to agree to a time and place for the discussions.

Wyngaard explaining the repeated controversy about bank taxation in recent legislatures as the merits of the issue which have never been clearly understood by many of these same politicians.

Gov. Nelson never really expected he could win the heavy additional tax levy that he proposed to the legislature in its final hours. He had been beaten on the issue in the general tax levy that he proposed to the legislature in its final hours. He had been beaten on the issue in the general tax revision bill earlier, when only majority votes were required. It had been widely assumed, by himself and by others, that a separate bank tax enactment would require a twothirds majority vote under the constitution, as Speaker David Blanchard in fact ruled a little later. In a controversy of any consequence. Mr. Lincoln as governor with Mr. Jefferson lobbying behind the scenes would have trouble getting a two-thirds

THE ISSUE

Yet this issue inevitably will echo in the new campaign. Democrats are convinced that they have something with which to win attention. Republicans are not at all convinced that they are wrong. Bankers themselves are worried.

The availability of the bank tax question as a stumping issue relates to the complexity of the question in all of its aspects, and the unlikelihood that the rebuttal to the simple generalizations of the anti-bank viewpoint is sucto explain, albeit with little re sult in popular appreciation. In the first place, the tax-exemption status of bonds is not enjoyed by the banks alone. It is available to all other investors. Secondly, the banks' bond holdings are at least in part the result of governmental liquidity requirements.

DISCRIMINATION?

Beyond that, the bankers are indignant because they have been singled out, among all the competitors in the financial field. Savings and loan companies. they explain, have historically been exempt from taxation altogether, and even under the new Wisconsin tax revision law they will pay far less on greater earnings than do the banks in state taxes.

Several objective state studies over the years have pointed to other financial institutions that enjoy hugely profitable tax shelters in state laws that nobody has seriously proposed to disturb. Nobody proposes to change them because the typical politician is afraid of their political power and their popularity among the voters. There is no such worry about banks and bankers. Until all of the tax discriminating laws are reformed - and that day does not seem likely to come soon - the bankers probably have some ground for their resentful responses to the campaign against them as "disgraceful" and "unconscionable." to use Gov. Nelson's recent words. No politician who seriously aspires to a reputation for fairness can dispute the idea that the general public in a time of increasingly crushing burdens of taxation owes any economic interest a "free ride", or even one at discount rates.

But general reform does not seem likely while there remain votes to be had by exploiting prejudice and inadequate public understanding.

'Starved' Public Sector Spends $173 Billion

From The Wall Street Journal It is frequently charged that the American people are living luxurious lives while the socalled public sector is starved of funds. Proponents of increased public spending would like to see more money taxed away from the people and spent in The issue is a little more broad supposedly wiser fashion by those on the federal, state and

> In the light of this, it is interesting to note a Tax Foundation report showing that government on all levels in the U.S. will spend $173 billion in fiscal 1962. To put a figure of that size in some kind of perspective, $173 billion amounts to about onethird of the country's annual output and represents $3,050 for every family in America. And the total is $12 billion higher than just a year ago.

Starved public sector? It wouldn't seem so.

Can't Start Cattle Industry Without Herds

Fidel Castro says he wants to end Cuba's dependence on its sugar crop by developing a cattle industry. For once, Fidel's talk makes sense. When Castro seized American properties in Cuba, he took over a branch of the King Ranch and its valuable breeding herd of Santa Gertrudis cattle, which are particularly adapted to climates such as Cuba's. But reportedly most of those Santa Gertrudis were slaughtered to supply hungry Cubans with meat for a parking lot between the and a herd which might have fire station and the Conway supplied a fine foundation for a Cuban cattle industry has disappeared. If that is the case, Fidel's sensible plan now appears to be somewhat frustrated by his irresponsible acts - a predicament which often befalls Socialistic planners.

Outagamie-Winnebago To Meet With Town, School Boards Before Attachment

After waiting through months of petitions, public hearings and a referendum, the Outagamie and Winnebago county school committee decided Thursday to reach its own decision on the division of the Harrison School District, with the help of town and school boards.

The committee adjourned until Jan. 30. It asked the Harrison First Venture Into Television Field, Town Board and school board officials from the affected areas to make a study and recommendations at the reconvened school board

Minnesota Bids Xavier '5' Will Play For Upset Win Over Buckeyes Host to Pennings

Largest Turnout Since '55 Expected In Gopher Fieldhouse

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

After a week's respite, undefeated Ohio State returns to Big Ten basketball action Saturday night at Minnesota, where the largest crowd since the record-breaking 20,176 turnout for the Iowa game of 1955 is expected.

The Buckeyes have disposed of Bill Austin Rejects Northwestern and Michigan in their first two conference starts and are 12-0 for the season as the nation's top-ranked team.

workouts on each of the next four days to sharpen the Badgers for the home game next Tuesday against North Dakota. The Big Ten schedule will be resumed Jan. 27 against Purdue.

"It's almost like starting all over again." Erickson said. "We'll spend most of our time scrimmaging. That should help get the boys back into condition.'

Some players, including scoring ace Ron Jackson, were expected to miss today's drill because of exams. The eligibility status of the players is expected to be known Saturday.

Before taking the annual midyear break, the Badgers won eight of 11 starts. They lead the Big Ten with a 2-0 mark.

Careful Accounting Can Increase Amount of Allowable Deductions Rahr Swine

BY HAROLD KURTZ Post-Crescent Farm Editor

- Post-Crescent Farm Editor

 It's tax time. And let's face it, there's no getting around it—you're going to pay taxes.
- There'll be real estate taxes, personal property taxes, state income tax and federal income tax. And pretty soon there'll be a state sales.

The wise farmer in making out his federal income tax return, will find it to his advantage to follow some advice in making out his return. By carefully allowing for all eligible deductions, the farmer

CHILTON-Two rulings on crop acreage handed down by the U. S Department of Agriculture have been explained by Herb Goeldi. chairman of the Calumet County ASC Committee.

Sweet corn used for livestock feed in 1962 will be classified as regular corn acreage under the new Feed Gram Program unless the ears are removed first for human consumption. At the same time, all sweet sorghums and dual purpose sorghums will be considered grain unless the sorghum is actually used for syrup

Goeldi also announced that there would be no restrictions on sugar beet acreage this year.

How to get extra milk every day for only 1½¢ per cow

Feed Land O'Lakes Milk Maker "36" daily. It costs only about 1½6 more per cow than your present daily feed costs, because you replace grain with Milk Maker "36". And at today's prices, the cost of a pound of Milk Maker "36" is only about 1½6 more than

You'll get extra milk every day because Milk Maker "36" contains the protein and other nutrients that are missing from normal rations of grains and roughage. Not only is this feed protein-rich itself, but it also contains sulphur to help your cow make even more protein from urea. The extra milk you'll get pays you back several times over. You'll make more money.

Better stop in to see us tomorrow. We'll help you get started on the Milk Maker "36" program so you can get extra milk every day for only 11/4 more per cow.

Certified for feeding efficiency by Anoka Research Farms ($9K) Land O'Lakes. Milk Maker "36" See the Dealers Listed Below .
